related, says the News, but the columns are full and deeds of heroism and self sacrifice must be omitted that now will never be known. Instances of devotion to duty were everywhere, and rescues were attempted in the face of certain death

Then, too, was seen the worst side of human asture. The News says: "The city was being looted, dead bodies were shorn of fingers by human ghouls thieving the jewelry.

Last Monday week seven hundred corpses were buried at sea, and the most grewsome tasks were necessarily undertaken by the citizens. Many refused to touch the bodies lying everywhere, this being especially true

The paper ebserves that gifted phes on land and sea, but their task lows: pales into insignificance when compared with the task of describing this calamity.
